

Gundalow programs continue to sail along

SPECIAL TO THE BEACH NEWS

SEACOAST | The Gundalow Company, based in Portsmouth, is currently sponsoring a series of "Contemporary Coastal Issues" — presentations for the public onboard the gundalow and featuring by guest speakers from coastal non-profit organizations.

The gundalow is making stops at a number of Seacoast area locales now through October 6. All events are free and open to the public, and run from 6-8 p.m. unless otherwise noted.

The next presentation will take place on Thursday,

August 18 at the Dover Town Park across the river from George's Marina in Dover. The program, entitled "The Fish Ladder on the Cochecho River," will be presented by Cheri Patterson of NH Fish & Game. This program is co-sponsored by the Cochecho River Watershed Coalition.

On September 8, "Current Research at the JEL" will be presented by JEL Manager Dave Shay at the UNH Jackson Estuarine Lab at Adams Point in Durham. The next pair of programs will be held at the Sandy Point Discovery Center in Stratham. The first, "The Great Bay Resource Protection Partnership," scheduled for September 22, will be presented by Daune Hyde of the Nature Conservancy. Then, on October 6, Natalie Springuel of Maine Sea Grant College of the Atlantic will present "The Gulf of Maine Expedition," a program co-sponsored by Great Bay Coast Watch.

This series has been made possible by a grant from the New Hampshire Coastal Program, with additional support from the French Foundation, the George W. Merck Fund, and the Thornton D. and Elizabeth S. Hooper Foundation.

The Gundalow Company is dedicated to "preserving the gundalow as a platform for maritime history and environmental education programs throughout the Piscataqua region." For more information, call the Gundalow Company at (603) 433-9505; e-mail info@gundalow.org; or visit www.gundalow.org.
