HENRY PEYSER & SON,
Portsmouth, N. H

Letter to MR. JNO. N. FELLOWS.

Exeter, N. H.

Dear Sir:—A man advertised that he'd send 25 useful articles for 25 cts. and every victim got 25 pins. Smart but shady; ought to have gone to jail. Our standing and capital (you can get them from your bank or mercantile agency) makes this letter to you non-offensive, and guarantee your consideration or that of any other property owner of your place for our offer of "free paint." Furnish us measurements of house to be painted, and we'll tell you how many gallons L. & M. Paint we can donate, and send you superb color schemes. We do it to secure sample houses covered with our paint, for such houses enable us to establish an agency quickly. In making this paint 30 years, sold enough to put a girdle of paint around the world in number of times, covers better and lasts longer than white lead; you think it with 50 over 3,000 L. & M. agencies in the U. S. It pays to inquire.

Truly yours,
Longman & Martinez,

A large number of Hampton people attended the meeting of the Last Resting Band Company at Hampton Falls Wednesday. It was an unusually interesting meeting with excellent papers and addresses read.

In the report of the town meeting last week, a typographical error made it say that one hundred tuns of shoes in the factory there shall be exempt from taxation for two years, when it should have been ten years.

Mrs. Willey, mother of special officer Fred Willey, with whom she makes her home, is suffering from a malignant disease for which she was operated on some time ago in a Lynn hospital. Until very recently she has been comparatively comfortable.

The warrant is posted for the annual school meeting, which will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, March 27, in the town hall. Beside the election of a moderator, clerk, treasurer and auditors and a new member of the school board, the question of appropriation for repairs to the various school buildings, schoolroom supplies and for the transportation of the pupils will be considered. There are eight articles in the warrant.

"The Old Maid's Convention" will be given by the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps, on Tuesday evening, March 26, in Grand Army Hall. This entertainment has been given in many of the neighboring towns, and gives a lot of fun to those who hear the frantic appeals of the "old maids" for husbands, and their delight, when they learn that they can be transformed into maidens. All who wish to pass a pleasant hour will do well to visit the Old Maid's Convention," and see them arrayed in their quaint costumes before they are made over into young maidens. A stormy, Tuesday,

The controversy over the Seabrook beach railroad in the legislature has ended and Lowell is a winner as it was hoped it would be. He has been given the right to construct the line by property, and has already begun operations. Mr. Shaw, Lowell's competitor, also received permission to construct his proposed line, but the bill requires him to do so before Oct. 1, or forfeit the right and by special agreement he will not build, so that the Lowell syndicate will have a clear field.

Rev. H. H. Adams, living on Union Square, Thursday forenoon and had by smashed the buggy. The horse was standing in front of Lane's store, and becoming frightened at some way started on a run toward Whittier's, scattering the contents of the buggy, and finally brought up against a telegraph pole near E. B. Towle's store, badly wrecking the vehicle and bringing the horse to such a halt that he was easily captured. Beside the buggy no other damage was done.

F. W. Mansfield has purchased the furniture business located in Odd Fellow's block which for the last year he has conducted as a branch store for J. W. Field of Exeter. During the year he has been here he has built up a good business and now that he has the business in his own hands will undoubtedly receive a generous support from the town people. As an undertaker he has won praise for his method of conducting, and nearly all funerals for the past year have been conducted by him. He will run the business as now a Hampton store and not an Exeter branch.

While the driver of the hardware wagon of A. Young of Exeter was in town with his team Friday, the horse which was standing in front of N. J. Norton's blacksmith shop became frightened at a piece of paper blowing about and started to run just as the driver was about to step into the wagon, but the horse being checked started toward the square and turned into the depot yard and there the wagon was upset, throwing hardware to the four winds. The horse was finally stopped by police officer Fred Willey by a collision should that the horse was unharmed, but the wagon and harness were a sight to behold.

City physicians have been vaccinating quite a number of late, though but a small proportion of those who need it. When it is remembered that in Manchester, Somerville and several other places in the state the dreaded smallpox is epidemic and that on account of the many electric roads access to these places is easy and of course Hampton is easily reached thereby, and that the law prohibits any child from attending a public school unless vaccinated it is surprising that so many persons old and young remain unprotected. "None so deaf as those who will not hear," is a proverbial saying, but never has the writer seen one of those who have the challenge to inoculate him with the virus of smallpox remaining unvaccinated while the believer therein will do the same but inject the vaccine virus.—Amesbury News.

...NOTICE...

F. W. MANSFIELD, having bought out J. W. Field's Furniture Store in Hampton, he is now prepared to sell you furniture cheap as can be bought anywhere. Also prepared to do first class funeral work, and the prices will be right. Thanking the public for past favors I still hope I can receive a share of your patronage.

F. W. MANSFIELD,
Odd Fellows Block, Hampton, N. H.

Negotiations are under way which will result in the Buswell building now standing on blocks east of the post-office being moved to a permanent location and fitted for occupancy.

F. W. Williams is shipping this week to Boston the balance of his last fall apple crop. He has about 200 barrels and they are going loose in the car just as they were picked from the trees.

The North Adams Transcript of March 12 says: Supt. Hall received word from Harvard college yesterday in regard to three Drury boys who entered college this year. They are Hardenburgh, Perkins and Locke, and all three are doing well. Perkins and Locke are among the first six men in a class of over six two and Locke has been awarded a scholarship of $150. Moldon Perkins and Augustus Locke, of whom is mentioned in the above clipping, are the grandsons of Mrs. Moses Perkins of Hampton. Locke received the scholarship prize because of his high standing in the freshman class of Harvard college. Miss Eugenia Locke, a granddaughter of Mrs. Perkins, is a member of the sophomore class of Wellesly college. These young people visit their grandmother every summer in Hampton.

The funeral afternoon was held the funeral services of Mrs. Clifford B. Gill, whose death from pneumonia occured Friday. Mrs. Gill was a sufferer from paralysis, and had been an invalid during the whole of her residence in Hampton. She was a woman of fine character, the possessor of a decided literary and artistic ability, and a large circle of friends extend sympathy to her family in their loss. The funeral was held in the Congregational church which was made beautiful for the memorial service by a profusion of palms, green boughs and hot house flowers. The casket which was of gray plush was covered with flowers, so abundant that it was nearly hidden from view. Rev. J. A. Ross conducted the service in the presence of a large gathering of friends, many of whom were strangers in Hampton. Music was furnished by a quartette from Harvard and among the selections were, "The Lord is my Shepard," "Lead Kindly Light," "O Paradise" and "Still, Still with Thee." The body was placed in the tomb to await burial, probably in Charlestown. Mrs. Gill is survived by her husband, two sons and two daughters.

A severe shock to the community was the sudden death of Mrs. Sarah Frances Willcutt, Wednesday forenoon. As stated in last week's paper Mrs. Willcutt had a severe attack on the 1st to th, but it was thought that she was slowly recovering, although confined to her room. Wednesday morning she seemed rather better than usual. Mrs. Berry was with her a little past ten o'clock and, she being apparently so comfortable Mrs. Berry decided to come up town on an errand. Ten minutes later, being ready to start, she called to Mrs. Willcutt, and receiving no answer went to her room and found life had passed away. There had been no struggle and probably no pain. The neighbors were notified and the doctor sent for, but there was no mortal help for her. Mrs. Willcutt was just past her 69th year being one of the 31 who were born in Hampton in 1835, a reunion of whom was held last summer at Mrs. F. P. Berry's, and Mrs. Willcutt is the first to pass away since that reunion. She was the daughter of Simon Brown of Hampton and married John Willcutt, a widower. She had by his marriage three sons, John, Walter and Fred who survive her, and one brother, John Brown, who is the only other immediate relative remaining. She was a woman active in church work until within a few years, when health prevented, being a member of the Congregational church, and has done much good in the community. She will be missed by many who have been her friends from childhood. The funeral will be held at Mrs. F. P. Berry's Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

The annual donation party of the Baptist church for the benefit of the pastor will be held in the vestry next Wednesday evening.

In millinery this year one of the novelties will be buckles, made in a great variety of styles, one of which is a small button made of roses instead of metal. Manser has them.

Some people think that any old thing will do as long as it is a sewing machine. A workman is known by his tools. It is not economy to use the old style, worn out sewing machine when you can get a new one that's runs easy and will do a third more work in a day than the old one, for a few price and on easy terms of Fred W. Peabody.

A play called Rebecca's Triumph will be given entirely of ladies about the first of April in the town hall. In connection will be music by an amateur brass band also composed of lady members. A rehearsal was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. G. Cole. The preparations for the play are progressing well and the next rehearsal will be held on Thursday afternoon.

Amesbury Millinery Opening.

Mrs. Morison of Amesbury, has decided to have her Annual Spring Opening of millinery on April 4, 5 and 6, and will make a specially interesting exhibit of new styles, ideas and novelties for th is season.
